2010 HACR CORPORATE DIRECTORS SUMMIT

The third annual HACR Corporate Directors Summit, in San Francisco, CA, welcomed Hispanic directors currently serving on corporate boards of Fortune 500 and HACR corporate member companies who gathered to discuss Governance – one of the organization's main pillars of corporate responsibility. The summit focused on HACR's mission to advance Hispanic inclusion in Corporate America and provided participants with the opportunity to network with colleagues and learn about some of the latest trends in the Hispanic consumer market.

"I was extremely impressed by the magnitude and organization of the event," said

Patricia Salas Pineda, group vice president of Toyota North America and board member of Levi Strauss & Company. "The session's topics were very enlightening and it was a fantastic opportunity to share ideas with industry thought leaders who have been successful in the implementation of Hispanic inclusion practices in their businesses."

The corporate directors participated at the three-day summit where topics included best practices in corporate governance, executive compensation in a post-crisis world and strategies for creating a solid roadmap to increase Hispanic representation on corporate boards. Participants also discussed how to respond to current multicultural market needs and identified the opportunities and challenges associated with corporate board representation.

"I was honored to participate in this summit which brings together a group of the brightest individuals to address topics that are important to the successful advancement of inclusion and diversity in Corporate America," said Nina G. Vaca, president & CEO of Pinnacle and board member of Comerica Inc. and Kohl's Corporation.

Spearheaded by HACR's Corporate Directors Council (CDC), the summit was developed in 2008 to further the organization's mission to increase the number of Hispanics serving on corporate boards. Learning from CDC members allows HACR to better assist corporate partners in advancing these efforts. The fourth annual HACR Corporate Directors Summit will be held next year in Washington, DC, in conjunction with the HACR Corporate Executives Forum™.
